Unexpected Visit By Local MP

Mr Ian Taylor, Elmbridge MP, made an unexpected visit to the award winning FruityFaces Ltd on Friday, the 18th of January 2008.

FruityFaces has been in the media's eye lately due to the three awards the company won and by the creator's appearance on Dragon's Den in 2007.

Ian Taylor fully supports the health promoting products FruityFaces is selling. He particularly wants local children to eat more fresh fruit – not only because it tastes good but because it is good for them!

He thought FruityFaces would be an ideal gift for grandparents to give their grandchildren as FruityFaces give fruit a positive image and get children to eat more fruit daily. With Easter coming, FruityFaces could be an alternative to the chocolate eggs and bunnies children are bound to receive.

Ian Taylor was impressed by the fundraising opportunity FruityFaces offers to local schools. For every 'fruity face' and 'multi carrier' sold through the school, a rebate of 80p is given back to them. For every 'yoghurt carrier' sold through the school, 50p is given back.

Ian Taylor offered his support to FruityFaces as they grow further and develop new products. The company just launched the 'multi fruit' carrier and a chilled yoghurt carrier popular with mums and small children.

FruityFaces are inflatable fruit carriers. They are practical, easy to clean, attach easily to backpacks and very attractive to children. They come in eleven styles and are available online at www.fruityfaces.com or 01372 844717. FruityFaces are also available at local retailers and major catalogue companies.
